Pick of the Week

Winter Vault

Anne Michaels (cl) $32.99

Thirteen years after the publication of her multi-award winning Fugitive Pieces, Michaels has blessed readers with a work that is ultimately about the resurrection of lives after devastating physical, emotional & spiritual upheavals. It is a wondrous thing to experience a writer who can take the histories of individual lives tied to such disparate episodes & have them mesh into a compelling, forceful & poetic narrative. The building of the St.Lawrence Seaway; the Egyptian Aswan Dam & reconstruction of the Abu Sempel temple; and Warsaw after WWII are examined in her characters' struggles to come to terms with the immense personal & community dislocations these events involved.

In the pipe for May

Autobiographies & family memoirs figure prominently this month. Michael Ignatieff's True Patriot Love chronicles the current leader of the opposition's rather illustrious family history as well as answering his critics' claims that he has lost touch with the Canadian mainstream due to his extensive professional life outside the country. Another opposition party leader, Elizabeth May, offers a critique & solutions to our present political malaise in  Losing Confidence: Power Politics & Crisis in Canadian Democracy.

Memoirs by actors detailing coping strategies with various infirmities and tough childhoods are given prominence. Michael J. Fox's Always Looking Up displays the positive outlook of a self-confessed incurable optimist in dealing with Parkinson's. Mary Tyler Moore's Growing Up Again offers a medical memoir recounting her 40 year battle with Type1 diabetes. Also notable in trade paper in the memoir category is Julie Andrew's Home. This first installment of her autobiography focuses on her surprising early family life & finding herself starring in Camelot opposite Richard Burton at the ripe old age of 20. Other autobiographies of note are Augusten Burroughs' Wolf at the Table, a not-so-loving look at his dear old dad & the managing editor of Gourmet Magazine, Ruth Reichl's Not Becoming My Mother. One can only imagine what would transpire if their respective parents hooked up. We think it would involve a lot of eating out on stolen credit cards. Steve Coll's Bin Ladens examines the lives of one of Arabia's most enigmatic & powerful families.

Thomas Homer-Dixon's environmental reality-check, Carbon Shift joins Vanessa Farquharson's Sleeping Naked Is Green & David Suzuki's Big Picture. Mirelle Guiliano's French Women for All Seasons & John Medina's Brain Rules head up the Health section.

Other non-fiction titles include historian Tony Judt's Reappraisals. He takes on revisionist trends in writing history that promote myth making over understanding & memory. Benjamin Wallace's Billionaire's Vinegar recounts an auction of an 1787 bottle of French wine that went for $156,000. Was it an elaborate con or a fascinating case of professional one-upmanship playing itself out? You decide. David Yallop's Power & the Glory explores the dark side of Pope John Paul II's Vatican. Erna Paris' Sun Climbs Slow is an exceptional history of global justice & the political struggle to establish accountability for crimes against humanity. President of Sudan please take note. Julian Barnes' Nothing to Be Frightened Of gives a crash course in facing mortality while Mary Roach's Bonk examines one of the more interesting facets of life.

New Fiction titles include Alexander McCall's Smith's Tea Time for the Traditionally Built &

A.S. Byatt's Children's Book.

Trade paper editions include Emily Giffin's Love the One You're With & the Movie tie-in edition of Dan Brown's Angels & Demons. Jhumpa Lahiri's Unaccustomed Earth joins Daniel Benioff's City of Thieves, Lionel Shriver's Double Fault, Margot Lively's House on Fortune Street, Monique Proulx's Wildlives & Emma Donoghue's Sealed Letter for those readers looking for their Spring fiction fix. Chuck Palahniuk's Snuff & Seth Grahame-Smith's Pride & Prejudice & Zombies offer readers something a little different. More traditional readers will be able to choose from Nora Roberts' Vision in White, Kate Jacobs' Comfort Food, Joanna Trollope's Friday Nights & Gemma Townley's Wild Affair. Margaret Satrapi's Chicken with Plums is a family memoir based on the life of her uncle & conveyed in the distinctive graphic format of her earlier work, Persepolis. Kurt Vonnegut's Armageddon In Retrospect is a posthumous collection of 12 previously unpublished works on the subject of war & peace. Mystery readers will see Donna Leon's new hardcover, About Face as well as Girl of His Dreams in trade paper. Henning Mankell returns to Africa in Eye of the Leopard while James Patterson heads to 7th Heaven & Graham Hurley contemplates No Lovelier Death.
